The Contours of Post-Capitalism

In his book, Contours of Post-Capitalist Society, author outlines the contours of a post-capitalist society. This new economic paradigm would be based on the following principles:

- Social ownership of the means of production: In a post-capitalist society, the means of production would be owned and controlled by the people, rather than by a small elite.
- Democratic economic planning: The economy would be democratically planned by the people, rather than by the market. This would ensure that the economy is responsive to the needs of the people, rather than the dictates of profit.
- Sustainability: A post-capitalist society would be based on the principles of sustainability. This means that the economy would be designed to meet the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs.
- Well-being: A post-capitalist society would prioritize the well-being of all people. This means that the economy would be designed to create a society in which everyone has the opportunity to live a good and fulfilling life.
