The 2012 U.S. women's gymnastics team was one of the most talented and successful teams in history. The team, which was led by Jordyn Wieber and Gabby Douglas, won the gold medal at the Olympic Games in London. The book "GymnStars" tells the story of the team's journey to the Olympics, including their struggles and triumphs.

Jordyn Wieber

Jordyn Wieber was born on July 12, 1995, in DeWitt, Michigan. She began gymnastics at the age of four and quickly showed a natural talent for the sport. Wieber won her first national title at the age of 14 and went on to win four more national titles in the all-around competition. She also won a silver medal in the all-around competition at the 2011 World Championships.

Wieber was one of the favorites to win the gold medal in the all-around competition at the 2012 Olympics. However, she fell during her floor exercise and finished fourth in the competition. Despite her disappointment, Wieber helped the U.S. team win the gold medal in the team competition.

Gabby Douglas

Gabby Douglas was born on December 31, 1995, in Newport News, Virginia. She began gymnastics at the age of six and quickly showed a natural talent for the sport. Douglas won her first national title at the age of 14 and went on to win two more national titles in the all-around competition. She also won a gold medal in the all-around competition at the 2011 World Championships.

Douglas was one of the favorites to win the gold medal in the all-around competition at the 2012 Olympics. She did not disappoint, winning the gold medal by a comfortable margin. Douglas also helped the U.S. team win the gold medal in the team competition.
