This book tells the real stories of Commonwealth soldiers who fought in World War II. These are the stories of the men who fought on the front lines, the women who supported them at home, and the children who grew up in the shadow of war.

These stories are told in the soldiers' own words, and they offer a unique glimpse into the human cost of war. We hear from soldiers who witnessed the horrors of battle, from women who lost their loved ones, and from children who grew up in a world that was forever changed by war.

This book is an essential read for anyone who wants to understand the true cost of war. It is a powerful reminder of the sacrifices that were made by so many people during World War II.

Excerpt

“I remember the day war broke out like it was yesterday,” said Tom, a veteran of the Battle of Britain. “I was just a young man, but I knew that my life would never be the same again.”

“I was terrified at first,” said Mary, a woman who lost her husband in the war. “But I knew that I had to be strong for my children.”

“I grew up in the shadow of war,” said John, a child of the war. “I never knew my father, who was killed in action.”

These are just a few of the stories that are told in this book. These are the stories of the men, women, and children who lived through World War II. These are the stories of the people who made the ultimate sacrifice for their country.
