An Unwritten Novel

Virginia Woolf's famous modernist masterpiece follows the narrative of an unknown female narrator on a train from London to the South Coast in England, creating the novel's plot and characters from the perspective of her thoughts and her feelings towards a woman that she meets from her invention for the woman based on the look that the narrator can read in her eyes. Will she be content through her assumptions or will she be for the world's most famous female protagonist?

An often often novel centering on a continuing fictional world for a number of years, often first published in a journal.

Virginia Woolf (1882-1941) was an English writer who is widely regarded as being among the most influential novelists in the 20th century and a pioneer of stream of consciousness narration. Woolf was a central figure in the literary modernist movement of the 1920s. Her works have inspired countless writers to take up the cause. She suffered numerous nervous breakdowns during her life, probably as a result of the deaths of family members, and it is now believed that she may have suffered from bipolar disorder. In 1941, Woolf drowned herself in the River Ouse at Luton, aged 59.
