Christiane was just 13 years old when she first tried heroin. She was immediately hooked, and soon she was spending all of her time and money on the drug. Christiane's addiction quickly spiraled out of control, and she soon found herself living on the streets, prostituting herself to support her habit.

Christiane's story is a heartbreaking one, but it is also a story of hope and redemption. In 1978, Christiane was arrested and sent to prison. While in prison, she began to confront her addiction and to rebuild her life. After her release from prison, Christiane became a drug counselor and an advocate for other addicts. She also wrote a book about her experiences, which was later adapted into a film.

Zoo Station is a powerful and moving book that tells the true story of Christiane F.'s addiction and recovery. The book is filled with vivid imagery and raw emotion, and it offers a harrowing look into the world of drug addiction, prostitution, and survival on the streets. Zoo Station is a must-read for anyone interested in understanding the devastating effects of addiction.
